

Dr. Jeffrey Sheehy is Chief Engineer of the Space Technology Mission Directorate at NASA Headquarters. He holds a Ph.D. in chemical physics and has led research and development projects related to advanced rocket propellants, space propulsion, astrophysics, materials science, and spacecraft thermal protection at NASA Marshall Space Flight Center, Air Force Research Laboratory, and NASA Ames Research Center. He has authored more than 125 technical papers, including 45 journal articles and 5 book chapters.